

Henry Lai

Henry Lai is a Research Professor of Bioengineering at the University of Washington. He has been doing research on the biological effects of nonionizing radiation, from extremely-low-frequency to radiofrequency electromagnetic fields, since 1980. Research end points cover molecular biology, neurochemistry, and behavior. Another area of his research is to investigate the use of electromagnetic fields for the treatment of various diseases, such as malaria and cancer.